Credit for Theory to Practice.

The world of adventure and experiential education is growing and expanding. Project Adventure is leading the way. Adventure is transformative; changing perceptions, changing environments and changing lives. Plymouth State University recognizes that creating and implementing an adventure program is worthy of being accredited.

specialized programs in schools, communities, camps, therapeutic and corporate settings. Workshops and graduate courses are offered worldwide, including sites in Massachusetts, Georgia, Vermont, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Singapore, Japan, Australia and New Zealand.

Plymouth State University is pleased to offer Continuing Education Units for selected Project Adventure workshops. These CEUs may be applied toward teacher professional development.

Project Adventure's trainers and consultants are veteran program specialists with extensive background in both adventure and their professional fields. The team is made up of educators, psychologists, authors, experience builders, athletes, licensed engineers and business people who can tailor the adventure experience to your specific needs.

Project Adventure is an international experiential education organization which offers books, activities, equipment and
