Counseling Programs Outcomes Report

Clinical Mental Health Counseling: In 2016 there were 11 graduates of Plymouth State University's clinical mental health counseling master's degree program. Clinical Mental Health Counseling students take the Counselor Professional Competency Exam (CPCE). Over 95% of students have successfully passed the exam on the first attempt. Over the past several years, approximately 50% of initially enrolled students completed the program. Among all program graduates, the three year job placement rate is approximately 90%. For the current academic year, approximately 36 students are enrolled in the program. About half are full time and half are part-time. Course schedules accommodate both groups of students equally well.
