

Your 2021-2022 Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) has been flagged for “Unusual Enrollment History Review” by the U. S. Department of Education because you received Federal Pell Grants and/or Federal Direct Loan funds at multiple educational institutions during the review period 2017-2018, 2018-2019, 2019-2020, and 2020-2021. This requires Plymouth State University Financial Aid to review your enrollment history to determine if any future federal aid can be received.

Please review and submit the Unusual Enrollment History Form and attach the requested supporting documentation. Our office will verify that academic credit was received at each institution during the relevant years. If so, you will have satisfied this requirement. If you failed to receive academic credit for any term you received a Federal Pell grant and/or Federal Direct Loan during the relevant award years, we will review your explanation of why academic credit was not earned that you submit with your Unusual Enrollment History appeal. If your explanation is not sufficient your federal financial aid will be denied and you will be notified. If you have questions, please contact us promptly so your financial aid will not be delayed.
