

U.S. College and University Scholarships

This list of resources is adapted from the Suffolk University website. It is a comprehensive list of information for international students that can be found on the web. PSU has a desire to provide students with the necessary information and resources to enable you to make an informed decision about studying in the United States and New Hampshire. Our desire is to help you achieve your goal.

International Organizations that Offer Scholarships

Students may check with international and local organizations for scholarship opportunities. Contacting organizations that share your interests or experiences (i.e., religious organizations that you have been a member of, ethnic or cultural organizations, community or international service groups) is recommended. Use scholarship and grant search engines to find other sources of financial aid.

STUDY OF THE UNITED STATES INSTITUTES FOR STUDENT LEADERS

Study of the U.S. Institutes for Student Leaders provide a unique opportunity to learn about and discuss values, issues, and institutions that have played important roles throughout the history of the United States. The participants in these programs live on a U.S. college campus, attend lectures, roundtable discussions, and site visits with academics and civic leaders, meet ordinary American citizens in a variety of cities and towns, engage in local community service activities and, most importantly, have the opportunity to discover the United States and its diverse cultures for themselves.

Students interested in participating in future Study of the U.S. Institutes should contact the Public Affairs Office at the U.S. Embassy in their home country.

Become a Fulbright Foreign Language Teaching Assistant

by Michele Scheib — last modified November 25, 2008 14:57

English teachers, ages 20-29, can come to the United States on a Fulbright scholarship to teach their native language and study at a university!

The Fulbright Foreign Language Teaching Assistant (FLTA) Program enables young educators to refine their teaching skills, increase their English language proficiency and extend their knowledge of the cultures and customs of the United States while engaging in non-degree studies at accredited post-secondary U.S. educational institutions.

Along with their studies, FLTAs teach language courses, supervise language labs and lead language table discussions. FLTAs may serve as an instructor of a foreign language class or have a purely teaching assistant role. FLTAs may also act as resource persons in conversation groups, cultural representatives, and much more.

Many institutions request FLTAs who have an interest and ability to live in small towns or are adaptable to living in rural areas, and who are outgoing and energetic representatives of their culture and language. Most of all, host institutions will look for candidates who demonstrate flexibility and a willingness to learn. People with and without disabilities are encouraged to apply.

If you are interested in becoming an FLTA, please go to Thinking of Applying to learn more about program eligibility and application procedures.
