

This is a printer friendly version of an article from www.fosters.com
To print this article open the file menu and choose Print.

Back

---

Article published Jun 8, 2014

Dover's Woodman joins NH Museum Trail

DOVER — The Woodman Museum in Dover, one of the Seacoast's oldest historical attractions, is proud to announce their collaboration with 14 other New Hampshire museums to form a consortium called "Experience New Hampshire Heritage: The Portsmouth to Plymouth Museum Trail."

The museums' goal is to create awareness of the many exciting history and cultural heritage museums in the Portsmouth to Plymouth region. By taking the Trail, visitors will encounter the authentic New Hampshire experience in diverse museums, historic sites and homes.

With over 200 years of history to explore, the Trail museums bring to life the New Hampshire independent spirit that is still alive and vibrant today.

Among the highlights to be explored on the Trail are an intact Shaker village, two historic farms, a Cold War-era submarine, vintage motor boats, a WWII-era Pershing tank, an original 1675 garrison house and a restored knitting mill, to name just a few of the treasures found on the Trail.

To learn more about the Trail, a full-color brochure is available at any of the participating museums or at select New Hampshire Visitor Centers. Included in the brochure is a location map that allows visitors to plan their trips. The Portsmouth to Plymouth Museum Trail sites can be explored in a day, weekend, or even week-long vacation.

The Trail members are (south to north): Strawberry Banke Museum, Portsmouth; Albacore Park Museum, Portsmouth; American Independence Museum, Exeter; Millyard Museum, Manchester; Woodman Museum, Dover; New Hampshire Farm Museum, Milton; Canterbury Shaker Village, Canterbury; Belknap Mill Society, Laconia; Clark House Museum, Wolfeboro; Libby Museum, Wolfeboro; New Hampshire Boat Museum, Wolfeboro; Wright Museum of WWII History, Wolfeboro; Castle in the Clouds, Moultonborough; Remick Country Doctor Museum & Farm, Tamworth and The Museum of the White Mountains, Plymouth.

For additional information call The Woodman at 742-1038 or www.woodmanmuseum.org. The Woodman Museum is a traditional early 20th century style museum located at 182 Central Avenue in historic Dover. Open Wed – Sun 10 – 5.

---